Each summer Dave would visit his aunt in Hamilton, Ohio where he maintained a relationship with close friends, Roger Troutman and his brothers who had formed a band as young teenagers. Dave was the lead singer of the group. Because he had to return back home each year he was unable to stay with the group who eventually went on to become the famous Roger and Zapp [Band].

Dave was a cast member of the production of “Precious Lord – The Untold Story of Gospel Music”, and performed leading roles in numerous stage plays, films, and television shows. Some of his credits are “God’s Trying to Tell You Something”, “Inquest of Sam Cooke”, “Is There a Preacher in The House”, and “Uncle Fletcher’s Money”

His powerful singing voice and acting ability earned him top billing in plays touring throughout the United States and in his travels, he shared the stage and performed with renowned acts and artists such as Aretha Franklin, The Temptations (as occasional backup), Stevie Wonder, The Chi-Lights, The Delphonics, The Mighty Clouds of Joy, Shirley Caesar, James Cleveland and the Southern California Community Choir, and Kirk Franklin to name a few. Because of his musical versatility Dave Shirley performs not only during major concert appearances but for corporate and business banquets and major company functions.

A retired aerospace engineer, working in the space station, one of Dave’s memorable moments was receiving a certificate of recognition for his dedication, commitment, and support of the successful flight of STS-88 into space. While working for Boeing he formed a singing group known as The Extravagant International Space Station Engineers of Boeing who sang at company-related events and holidays.

Dave’s passion for humanity inspired him to write the song “Let’s Help One Another”. When asked what inspired him, he spoke of the current conditions that exist in the world today with homelessness, the political climate, and other social and economic issues and the toll it has taken on families and communities. His focus in the lyrics is to inspire and encourage others to get involved, show more love and compassion; to show that they care with a simple smile or an act of
